LM ZONING | CITY OF COEUR D'ALENE

LM (Light Manufacturing) zoning is intended for lower-impact industrial and employment-oriented development—such as light manufacturing, warehousing, contractor-related operations, equipment/service businesses, and similar uses—while keeping incompatible uses separated from residential areas. Some more commercially oriented or potentially higher-impact activities, including offices, retail/service businesses, recreation, or extractive uses, may require a special-use permit rather than being automatically allowed.

COEUR D'ALENE, MSA

AREA OVERVIEW

North Idaho offers a unique combination of strong population growth, outdoor recreation, and a high quality of life. The region encompasses Kootenai, Bonner, Boundary, Benewah, and Shoshone counties, with Coeur d'Alene serving as the largest city and primary economic hub. Communities including Post Falls, Hayden, Rathdrum, Sandpoint, and Kellogg contribute to a diverse and growing regional economy.

The Coeur d'Alene metropolitan area continues to attract residents and businesses seeking access to natural amenities, a growing workforce, and proximity to Spokane. The MSA reached approximately 191,900 residents in 2025, up from 180,100 in 2021.

North Idaho's economy is supported by a diverse mix of healthcare, retail, manufacturing, construction, tourism, professional services, and small businesses. The region's location along Interstate 90 provides convenient access to Spokane and the broader Inland Northwest, while its lakes, rivers, mountains, trails, and ski areas make outdoor recreation a defining part of the region's lifestyle.

Coeur d'Alene and surrounding communities continue to gain national attention as desirable places to live. In 2025, Redfin ranked Coeur d'Alene No. 2 among the best places to live in Idaho, highlighting its outdoor recreation, amenities, and accessibility to Spokane.
